WHY SAY YESS?

Come January 2019, Ontario Tire Stewardship's program will be gone but the obligation to collect and manage used tires remains.

What does this mean for your business and your customers? How will you meet your reporting, auditing and processing obligations? How will you recover materials at end of life, secure commercial agreements and still achieve environmental compliance?

The answer is simple. Say YESS!

Sign up for free with YESS and we will manage all your individual producer responsibility requirements – allowing you to stay focused on the road ahead.

SAY YESS TO...

- A Producer Responsibility Organization focused on customizing our services and solutions to meet your unique business requirements.
- A team that can transition your business to a full circular economy producer program and help you meet all your individual producer responsibility requirements.
- Decades of experience running extended producer responsibility programs – a one stop shop for all your environmental compliance needs.
- An Ontario-based team that can support compliance reporting, manage your collection and processing providers, or create a best in class sustainability program.

- Expertise that can evaluate whether your organization would benefit from an independent producer responsibility program and ensure you meet or exceed your compliance requirements across multiple materials.
- Established hauling and processing partners in place, ready to negotiate fair and transparent pricing for you – our customer.

Sarah Webb, our Executive Director, knows tires. In addition to establishing and managing 88 environmental stewardship programs at Canadian Tire, she has 8 years of experience as an OTS Director. So yes, she knows tires and every other extended producer responsibility program. Sarah and her team stand ready to create customized compliance solutions for your business.

They are committed to working with all facets of the tire industry – from producers and collectors to haulers and processors – and to developing right-size solutions for individual processors.
